USDA Rural Development and US Department of Interior, Office of Tribal Energy and Economic Development will conduct a workshop on the Cooperative business model.

- Have you considered joining other fishers so that you have a larger market share and can be more competitive?
- Do you need assistance in handling and processing your catch?
- Do you want to learn how to leverage your expenses with others for such items as marketing so you can increase your profits?

These may be reasons to consider a Native fishers cooperative. Learn more.

The training is being conducted in cooperation with the Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians, Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission, and Native Procurement Technical Assistance Center . Presenters will be from Washington, D.C. and also from the Cape Flattery Fishermen 's Cooperative.

USDA is an equal opportunity lender, provider and employer.
