

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
U.S. Department of the Interior

www.doi.gov

Media Advisory

Office of the Assistant Secretary – Indian Affairs

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
June 20, 2014

Contact: Nedra Darling
(202) 219-4152

Office of Justice Services to Hold Fourth Tribal Court Trial Advocacy Training Session on June 23-26 in Albuquerque Training to focus on DUI pre-trial writing and advocacy skills, includes a roundtable discussion on the Violence Against Women Act

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Bureau of Indian Affairs' Office of Justice Services (OJS) will hold its fourth trial advocacy training session of 2014 for tribal court personnel on June 23-26, 2014, in Albuquerque, N.M. This unique session widens the parameters of previous training sessions, by focusing on pre-trial writing and advocacy skills using a DUI fact pattern and the laws of the Navajo Nation.

Because of a high level of interest, OJS is offering legal training it successfully held in 2012 and 2013 to new groups of tribal court judges, prosecutors, public defenders and other court personnel to improve their trial advocacy skills. Training to-date has focused on case studies involving illegal narcotics, domestic violence and sexual assault on adults and children. This month's writing session in Albuquerque is a result of a collaborative effort between the Bureau of Indian Affairs and participants who have attended past sessions. In addition, each session includes a roundtable discussion on the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) with a panel of tribal attorneys who have first-hand knowledge of the requirements of that law's jurisdictional pilot project application.

The three training sessions held this year and their topics are: Jan. 27-30, Albuquerque, N.M. (sexual assault on adults); March 31-April 3, Denver, Colo. (illegal narcotics) and May 19-22, Helena, Mont. (domestic violence).

A component of the Tribal Law and Order Act of 2010, the Tribal Court Trial Advocacy Training Program is a joint effort by the Department of the Interior and the U.S. Department of Justice to further the Act's mandate to strengthen tribal sovereignty over criminal justice matters on federal Indian lands by sharpening the skills of those who practice within the tribal court system.

-Continued-

Page 2 – 2014 Tribal Court Training – Albuquerque

The program is the result of a collaborative effort by OJS and the DOJ's Access to Justice Initiative to offer trial advocacy training with courses designed specifically for tribal courts and free training to the judges, public defenders and prosecutors who work in them. Training is conducted by working law professionals using instructional materials prepared by experts knowledgeable about tribal court issues. The program is unique for its public defenders training and now has specific training for tribal judges.

President Obama signed the Violence Against Women Act on March 7, 2013. It includes important provisions for federally recognized tribes to combat violence against Native women, such as homicide, rape, assault and battery in the home, workplace and on school campuses throughout Indian Country.

WHO: Office of Justice Services, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior.

WHAT: The fourth OJS Tribal Court Trial Advocacy Training Program session of 2014 to improve the trial advocacy skills of tribal court judges, prosecutors, public defenders and other court personnel as mandated under the Tribal Law and Order Act of 2010. This session will provide tribal judges, prosecutors and defense counsel with practice in pre-trial writing and advocacy skills using a DUI fact pattern and based on the laws of the Navajo Nation. It includes a roundtable discussion on the Violence Against Women Act.

WHEN: June 23-26, 2014 (MDT)

Monday, June 23: 1:30 p.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Tuesday, June 24: 8:30 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Wednesday, June 25: 8:30 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Thursday, June 26: 8:30 a.m. – 1:00 p.m.

WHERE: BIA-Building II, 1011 Indian School Road N.W., Albuquerque, New Mexico.

CREDENTIALS: This invitation is extended to credentialed media representatives, who must display sanctioned media credentials for admittance to the event.

####