(WASHINGTON, D.C.) – Assistant Secretary – Indian Affairs Neal A. McCaleb will be a keynote speaker at the Joint Fall 2001 Tribal Self-Governance Conference with the Department of the Interior and Department of Health and Human Services. The event will be held November 12-16 at the Quinault Indian Nation Resort in Ocean Shores, Wash. Topics of discussion will be self-governance and trust reform.

Assistant Secretary McCaleb will appear on Wednesday, November 14 starting at 9:15 a.m. (PT) before a projected audience of over 400 tribal representatives from 220 federally recognized tribes who operate programs in accordance with the Tribal Self-Governance Act of 1994. The Act gives tribes the authority to administer programs and services previously managed for them by the federal government in ways that better address conditions unique to their reservations and communities. The conference is held biannually in the spring and fall.
